The only way to help more animals is to get more help!

Please add us on Facebook: Dogs and Cats of the Dominican Republic DCDR

DCDR is a not for profit organization registered within Canada, USA and Dominican Republic. We focus within the Dominican as the Caribbean islands are a very difficult spot for stray dogs and cats to survive.

The islands do not have the same animal welfare legislations that we have here in Canada.

The average local in the Dominican only earns $350.00 US per month and so they simply cannot afford to care for animals properly; as a result the average life span of a stray is only 2 to 3 years. We genuinely want to fix this. We are firm believers of recruiting more Canadians to help out; we are so lucky to live where we live and have what we have!

Each year we help over 2,000 stray Coconut Hounds & Cats, by providing free spay & neuter clinics, free vet care, parasite prevention and rehoming animals as needed. In addition, we put a significant emphasis on education; teaching the local people how to live with animals.

We are looking to expand our organization to help more animals and the only way we can do this is with your help. You can volunteer in so many different ways. If you are an animal lover with a passion to improve the quality of lives, simply fill in the below information with your contact details and select the ways that you would like to help us:
